DeVries reflects on time as assistant director at ODL

By Jason Wesseldyk
Sports Editor

Wednesday, Dec. 3, marked the end of an era at the Otsego District Library.

That's when the library hosted Santa Storytime, which was the final program for Diane DeVries after a decade of service as the ODL assistant director/program and outreach director.

Devries' official last day in that capacity is Wednesday, Dec. 31. She won't disappear, though.

Rather, she'll then transition into a part-time role as community liaison and customer service manager at the library.

Santa Storytime was a bit of a bittersweet experience for DeVries.

"I am very grateful for the opportunity that was given to me to be the assistant director these past 10 years," DeVries said. "I have loved getting to know this community and am thankful that I will still be at the library to enjoy all of the patrons and staff.

"The library is constantly striving to offer new and better services for our patrons. I'm excited to see how this will continue in the years to come. I want to thank the staff, board and community for allowing me to have the best job I have ever had."

Prior to coming to ODL, DeVries served as the preschool and youth director at Martin Reformed Church. After deciding it was time to step down from those roles, she wasn't sure what her next job would be.

But soon thereafter, she heard from ODL director Andrea Estelle that the library was seeking an assistant director.

"I read the job posting and felt it was the perfect fit for me," DeVries said. "I was shocked and very excited when I was offered the job to be the assistant director and programming specialist. As I looked back over all the positions I had before coming at the library, I could see how all of those helped to prepare me for this role."

Estelle said ODL and the Otsego community are fortunate to have had DeVries for the past 10 years.

"Diane's leadership, warmth, and dedication have touched thousands of patrons' lives, and her steady presence behind the scenes, supporting staff, ensuring safety and nurturing community connections has shaped the library into what it is today," Estelle said.

"We celebrate and thank Diane for ten years of imagination, joy and wholehearted service to Otsego. Diane tried to make each year better than the last for her program numbers and last year she had the highest numbers that the library has ever had."

According to DeVries, the aspect of working at ODL that means the most to her is the opportunity to foster a sense of community.

"Community is built when new parents become friends after spending time together during our Tiny Tot program," she said. "It is built during our adult programming when people can share ideas, skills, talent and life with each other.

"Community was also built during our Early Literacy Fundraiser each year. Andrea and I spent hours creating a life-size game in our program room. Local businesses sponsored the event, and patrons would get together with their friends to come and enjoy the fun. It has been an incredible amount of work, but it has been so much fun watching the community enjoy these events."

Themes from the Early Literacy Fundraiser included mini-golf, Candyland, Jumanji, Alice in Wonderland, Wizard of Oz, Where's Waldo, Charlotte's Web and Charlie and the Chocolate Factory.

DeVries was also in charge or weekly Storytimes and the summer reading program, responsibilities she cherished.

"Working with the children has been a joy," she said. "Every day they bring a smile to my face when they enter the library and say 'Hi Miss Diane' or just a smile from the littlest ones. I have loved singing with them, reading to them and watching them be creative with all of the projects.

"It is so rewarding to see young patrons get excited

OHS National Honor Society hosts annual toy drive

By Jason Wesseldyk
Sports Editor

Each year, members of the Otsego High School chapter of the National Honor Society conduct an annual toy drive to support the efforts of the Otsego Christmas Ministries.

This year's drive raised approximately $9,000, which was used to buy toys for 166 children in the Otsego area.

The children who receive the toys are from families identified through local churches in conjunction with the Otsego Christmas Ministries.

These same families also receive the food donations collected through the Otsego High School Student Council's recent food drive.

Otsego High School math teacher Katie Wideen, who serves as the school's NHS advisor, said the importance of the toy drive to the community can't be overstated.

"It's important because there are so many kids in our immediate community who have so little—especially in the economic times we are in—and this is just a small way to bring smiles to their faces when they see all the gifts under the tree," she said.

According to Wideen, the toy drive fits perfectly into the mission of the National Honor Society, as highlighted by its four pillars: scholarship, service, leadership and character.

"This toy drive is a huge service to the community," Wideen said.

To collect money for the toy drive, the NHS members held several fundraisers. Those included:

* a bake sale during intermission each night of the musical;

* a bake sale at one of the football games;

* Three Dine To Donate events in three different restaurants (Blaze Pizza in Oshtemo, Panera in Oshtemo and Culvers in Otsego);

* a pay-to-wear-jeans fundraiser for the middle school and high school teachers (teachers could pay $10 per week for each week between Thanksgiving break and Christmas break to wear jeans every day of the weeks they paid for);

* and a calendar fundraiser where people sponsored a day in November and paid that amount (for example, if you sponsored the 10th of November, you paid $10).

Once the money was raised, it was time for the NHS members to have a little fun.

Several of them went to the Meijer on West Main in Kalamazoo to pick out and purchase the toys to be given away.

"We want to give the Meijer on West Main a huge thank you for allowing us to come and invade their store for two-plus hours of shopping," Wideen said.

It's an experience that, according to Wideen, is always an impactful one for the NHS members as they begin to look outside themselves.

"This project is very eye-opening to a lot of the kids," she said. "When they get the lists of things that the kids want, there is always shock and amazement as to what the kids we are shopping for ask for.

"Yes, many of them ask for toys, but a lot of the older ones that we buy for—the teens—ask for make-up or hair ties, a brush, body wash, blankets and similar items. Things that my NHS kids just take for granted and might even have a drawer full of that type of stuff at home.

"Even simple things like a box of crayons or drawing paper make the kids stop and think about how lucky they really are."

While the toy drive is over, the Otsego High School NHS still has plenty of service projects planned for the remainder of the school year.

Those projects include:

* The Share the Warmth Project in January.

"We will be collecting new winter hats, gloves, scarves and warm socks (both adult and kid sizes) and delivering them to the Kalamazoo Gospel Mission," Wideen said. "We will have an Amazon Wish List set up, or people can also drop donations off at the high school during normal school hours."

* Serving as guest readers at the districts elementary schools during March is Reading Month.

"My big kids love this, and the little kids love having the big kids come and read to them and hang out for a short time," Wideen said.

* Taking part in Roof Sit in May.

"We will be helping out with Roof Sit by participating in their Tips for Kids campaign," Wideen said. "Roof Sit raises money to help provide resources to children and families in the Kalamazoo area that have been affected by child abuse."

In addition to those bigger projects, the OHS NHS plans to do at least one smaller project each month.

City of Plainwell looks at fire gear

By John Raffel
Correspondent

At its meeting earlier this month, the Plainwell City Council was to consider purchase of Fire Gear according to NFPA Standards, which provide guidance on the lifespan and replacement criteria for turnout gear.

It calls for mandatory retirement of structural firefighting gear at ten years from the date of manufacture, regardless of condition. Four sets of fire gear have reached the 10-12 year mark and need to be replaced. Replacing fire gear reduces liability, protects the firefighters, and allows the city to remain complaint with recommended safety standards.

The recommended action was to consider approving the purchase of four sets of fire gear from MES for $9,036.

The Council was to discuss and review currently proposed development plans for the Mill Complex.

Art Hop takes center stage during Festive Friday

By Gari Voss

The City of Allegan's Festive Friday, December 12, 2025, from 5-8pm featured artists and artisans from around West Michigan. The Allegan Area Arts Council created a wonderful menu of medium. Visitors planned their loop around town to explore all of the artists and hosting businesses.

The evening was crisp, but with the assistance of the Holly Jolly Trolley, free hot chocolate, live music, and accommodating local businesses, visitors were able to keep warm and enjoy lively conversations.

During Art Hop Festive Friday, the line of families wound around the Allegan district Library in hope of spending time with Santa.

Allegan's Art Hop visitors could learn about the art of growing herbs and the art of cooking. Visitors to A-Tech learned from Katy Kindermann about her herbs, salt & seasoning.

Often when "art" is mentioned, the vision is of art on canvas using acrylics, watercolors, ink, or pencil. But Allegan's Art Hop offered new dimensions in art like Laura Bucks' and Lacey Schmitt's succulents and more, Katy Kindermann's herbs, Tommy Sumner's freeze dried items along with oils and honey, and Lydia Bouman's tallow creams. The natural "ingredients" gave art lovers a new way to appreciate nature-inspired art. Nature was also highlighted in Sandy Clark's centerpieces and Debbie and Peter Thompson's Michigan leaf art.

Alexa Birkam and Essenburg Arts displayed a wide variety of ceramics complete with wonderful detail. Soft Art was represented by upcycled sweater mittens by Celeste Westrate, Karen Rambadt's felt & paper, Sharon Jager's, Sheri Peyerk's and Barb Null's cloth creations, Ranae Baumgart's use of paper, Jill Scripps' lavender moon garden items, and Amy & Aliza Meyer's crochet & more pieces. On the more delicate side was the hand blown glass by Michael Fortin & Judith Konesni, while on the more solid side were Mike LaJoice's copper artwork, Trudy Fabijancic's seasonal wooden decorations, and Paul Smith's art from "found objects".

A visit to Tardy's Underground found Izaak Schans, known for Comic Art & Paintings and Ink Drawings, creating portraits of visitors during Allegan's Art Hop, Dec. 12, 2025.

Even with the variety of artisans, the vibrant colors and artistic techniques employed with a brush and canvas elicited many conversations. Paintings offered by Brandy VanOrder, Lori Lapekes, Pat Miner, Carmen Moore, Sandy Troutman, Mary Clare Johnson, and Paulette Carr could enhance the walls of homes or offices. Those same techniques were displayed by Julie Fender on her tumblers and Brandy VanOrder on her suncatchers and jewelry. At the same time, Xavi Corcoran intrigued customers with fantasy & abstract paintings, and Izaak Schams sketched customers while displaying comic art and ink drawings.

Along with the many artists and artisans, the Allegan District Library hosted Santa, who interacted with hundreds of children, and his reindeer, while furnishing some hot chocolate and goodies. City Hall also offered hot chocolate and a chat with city council members.

Extra time was allowed to stop at Justina's School of Dance to enjoy the performances, and a visit to the First Presbyterian Church for their Holiday Market that provided plenty of music, treasures, and a warm meal.

During the exploration of the many art and artisan venues, visitors learned that Davis Diamond Designs on Locust St. had officially opened their doors for a soft opening and weekend hours. Also, Essenburg Arts Studio in Shoppes at Brady is offering ceramics workshops. Add to that opportunities for workshops at Eccentric Gardens, Cottage Arts & Eats, Sharon's Quilts & More, The Bear & Fox Yarn Den, and Allegan Floral. Avid readers were invited to check out Janelle Arens' young adult books.

A special thank you can be given to the music artists. Mike & Becky Villar brought their sounds to Tantrick Brewing, Dean Michales and Greg Howard filled the Bear & Fox Yarn Den and all of Brady Street, while Dan Smith entertained those in the halls outside Allegan Floral, and Sheila & the Iron Bridge Strings filled Country House Furniture. Plus, art in movement was demonstrated by the students at Justina's School of Dance.

Art Hop ignites a light on the many types of art in the world. The flame can continue throughout the year, and these artists can be contacted, and their creations can be purchased for personal use or to give as gifts.

Tantrick Brewing expanded their offerings beyond home brew on Dec. 12, 2025, to beautiful hand blown glass items by Michael Fortin & Judith Konesni plus music by Mike & Becky Villar of Whiskey & Wine.

Happy Holidays
from all of us at Sebright Products—wishing you joy, peace, and prosperity this season and in the year ahead!

Laketown ending Interurban bus service in January

Township puts focus on Allegan County Transportation service.

The Laketown Township Board of Trustees is ending the experiment with the Interurban bus service and is looking to increase use of the Allegan County Transportation network instead.

The board voted 2-1 on Thursday, Dec. 11, 2025, to cut ties with the Saugatuck-Douglas Interurban Transit Authority effective in 30 days. That means the on-demand bus service will no longer pick up or drop off passengers in Laketown Township as of Jan. 10, 2026.

The township began using the Douglas-based bus service on May 1 for a trial period to last through Oct. 31. An adult rider paid $1, senior citizen, handicapped or child rider paid 50 cents, to picked up or dropped off in the Interurban's service area of Saugatuck Township and the cities of Saugatuck, Douglas and Fennville.

The township said if the service was a success, it would consider funding through a millage request. The township was billed $7 per rider.

The township saw ridership as high as 846 people in July for a cost to the township of $5,929. The township had 823 riders in October for a cost of $5,761. The November numbers are not yet available. Since May, the township has paid $30,065 for the service.

The township originally budgeted $21,000 for the trial period but extended that period through March 2026. The board authorized another $26,000.

The board began looking for ways to reduce the costs, including changing the fare structure.

The Interurban offered a flat fee of $4,100 a month. In November, the board asked Supervisor Steven Ringelberg and Manager Stephanie Fox to negotiate better terms. They came back with one offer of $3,500 a month.

The Interurban started serving Laketown Township in May. Service is expected to end in January.

Allegan County Transportation

Board members were concerned about the cost and on Dec. 11 discussed having residents use Allegan County Transportation service.

Fox was instructed to contact Allegan County Transportation officials to help promote the service on the township's website. Fox will also collect ridership data and report back to the board after March 4.

The bus service out of Allegan schedules on a priority basis:

Priority One -- Standing Orders/Subscription Trips: These are services, established in advance, same passenger, same time, and same origin.

They are based on availability. Medical trips take precedence. Recurring or subscription trips for employment purposes for new passengers will be set up once the passenger has completed two weeks of travel with 1 or less no-shows.

Priority Two -- Reserved Trips: These rides are reserved before noon the prior business day in advance of service needed.

Priority Three -- On Demand: Trips requested without advance notice. Call by noon the day before travel is needed to secure your spot on the next day's schedule.

Adults and children 13 and older pay $2 for a one-way trip. Those 60 and over, people with disabilities and children 5-12 pay $1 for a one-way trip, except trips for those 60 and over are no charge (the Allegan Commission on Aging reimburses the ACT for such trips). Children up to 4 years old with an adult supervisor ride free.

Transportation is available from 5 a.m. to 9 p.m. on weekdays, and on Saturdays from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. The service is funded through Allegan County. Laketown Township does not pay extra for the service.

Allegan County Transportation has been serving Allegan County since 2000. Its mission is to enhance and promote economic development and serve the transportation needs of Allegan County by providing safe, reliable, barrier-free travel.

Middle school students depict Anne Frank's life

L.E. White Middle School in Allegan held a very special Community Night where middle school students guided those in attendance through the "Anne Frank: A History for Today" museum exhibit. This was the first stop on the traveling museum's tour.

The information panels were designed by the Anne Frank Center at the University of South Carolina. Students volunteered to participate in the two-day training to become the docents who could walk their peers and community members through the life of Anne Frank.

More than once a docent could be heard stating that when Anne went into hiding and was later caught by the Nazis, she was their age – just a young teenage girl. This traveling exhibit is truly a powerful exploration of a brave girl whose history is one for people today.

Often, junior high or early high school students will read The Diary of Anne Frank in English class. The students who received the docent training received a deeper understanding of Anne's life, and the life of all Jewish people who were pursued by the Germans before and during World War II.

"In over twenty years of being an educator, this has been one of the most powerful and impactful experiences I have ever been a part of," stated Principal Laura Feffer. "If these students represent the future of Allegan, then we are in good hands!"

As groups of seven were invited into the museum hall, others were able to watch The Ice Cream Man. The movie was the winner of the Emerging Filmmaker Contest during the Conference on Jewish Material Claims Against Germany in 2023. This remarkable story follows Ernst Cahn, a man who decided to become a resistance fighter in the Netherlands. The resistance of Cahn against Nazi aggression sparked an uprising in Amsterdam and a citywide strike of 300,000 workers on February 25 and 26, 1941, to protest Cahn's arrest at his Koco Ice Cream Parlor. Sadly, Cahn could not stop the rounding up and deportation of more than 420 Jewish men targeted by the infamous Butcher of Lyon. Of those men sent to Buchenwald and Mauthausen concentration camps, only two survived.

Community members thanked the students many times for their leadership and presentation skills. Many in attendance went away with a new understanding of Anne Frank and her plight. Thanks to the courage of her father, the only family member to survive Nazi concentration camp, Anne's diaries were edited for publication.

Special thanks were given to the Allegan Public Schools, Allegan Area ESA, and the Allegan County Community Foundation (ACCF) for their support in this endeavor. And gratitude was given to those at the University of South Carolina's Anne Frank Center who created the information panels and the trainers.

We Need The Good News of Christmas

MIKE'S MUSINGS

MIKE WILCOX
■ PUBLISHER ■

I was searching for words that would express an uplifting spirit this Christmas season. Too many of us, my self-included, consider the holiday season to be a distraction rather than a time to rejoice. Well my friend, Glenn Mollette happened to send me this piece while I was searching and lo and behold, after reading, I came to the conclusion that this is the season for joy and thankfulness. I must partake in it, because being happy and thankful is contagious, and I would like everyone to share that happiness this holiday season. Read on and focus on good things and cast aside the bad.

Dr. Glenn Mollette:

We never get a break from bad news. In recent days we have heard of people being killed at a Hanukkah celebration in Australia. There have been more school shootings from Brown University to Kentucky State University. Russia continues to bomb Ukraine and groceries continue to assault Americans' pocketbooks.

Yet, at Christmas time the overriding theme is good news. In a world of so much bad news comes the holiday of good news. The angel who appeared to the Shepherds who were watching their flock said, "Do not be afraid, I bring you good news that will cause great joy for all the people. Today in the city of David a Savior has been born to you; he is the Messiah, the Lord," Luke 2:10-11.

The central person of the good news is Jesus. He is the one the angels celebrated. His birth gave them reason to appear and make the wonderful announcement that brought joy to the shepherds and all who would be impacted by the birth of Jesus.

This Christmas you are probably one of many who welcomes good news. Maybe you have buried a wife, a husband or a child. At times, the loneliness and grief are unbearable and you wonder how you will ever survive your missing loved one. People are suffering financial stress from the cost of everyday living Sickness invades our lives at one time or another impacting us or someone we love. Life is filled with stressful situations that often rob us of peace.

The good news of Christmas is God has come in the flesh to love us, walk with us and bring joy that nothing or no one else can give. Jesus said "My peace I give unto you, not as the world gives, but give I unto you," John 14:27.

This Christmas there is much to focus on. You can spend your day focused on the Democrats or the Republicans. You can focus on our President or members of Congress. You can focus on all that you do not have or all that you wish you did not have. You can focus on your situation, your age, your health or you can focus on everyone else. Will this bring you joy?

Do not focus on regrets. Do not focus on mistakes, problems, old habits or sins. Jesus came to help us overcome all of these and more. Because of his life, death and resurrection we have a Savior who has given us every reason to look up and forward instead of down and back.

Jesus told his disciples in John 16:33, "Take heart, I have overcome the world."

While the media is filled with bad news, take heart, the message of Christmas is good news. Therefore, as Jesus said, "Let not your heart be troubled." May we all be filled with the good news of the great story of Christmas.

Life as Performance Art

G CORWIN STOPPEL

Since the Great Covid Shut Down, Christmas has become very "the past." I don't blame it on the virus nor closures used to slow its progress.

Some has come from our penchant for online shopping, ordering food and delivery services, plus political and economic turmoil in our country. Worse, we have used our devices and apps to isolate ourselves from the rest of the world.

Nor do I think this perception is based on that I am a grouchy old man, or even believe in Yogi Berra's veracity when he reminded us, "Nostalgia ain't what it used to be."

I do not believe that most of Christmas has changed. For those who profess their faith in Jesus, the nativity story remains the same.

Rather, it is how we observe and celebrate Christmas that has changed. For those who lament, "Well, it isn't like it used to be," you are absolutely right. Maybe, just maybe it has changed for the better.

The harsh reality is our culture has changed, and an abundance of worrisome challenges stares us in the face. Maybe we are letting our fear of them get the best of us.

Here is what I mean. My sister chased our family tree back to Merry Olde England in the 1100s.

It was not very merry for most people, especially the peasants, serfs and even the skilled laborers. They had rough lives, often short and brutal. It wasn't even "olde" because only decades earlier the Anglo-Saxons were defeated by the Normans, and the country was run roughshod by the French.

Real power was in the hands of the nobility, knights, royalty and the upper-echelon clergy, whether they were Anglo-Saxon or Norman. The legend of Robin Hood was built on a noble archer who turned to 12 o'clock the noses of those who lorded it over the poor.

Then came Dec. 24, and everyone laid down their tools, warring armies declared a truce, and abuse ground to a temporary halt. Woven strands of holly were placed over spinning wheels and looms, not for decoration as much as to say, "we're taking a break; a holiday."

The same thing was true in the small factories and workshops. From Christmas Day until Jan. 6, the people partied and celebrated in both sacred and secular ways.

That structure of abject poverty for many, comfort for a few continued for centuries, right up to our own time. Jane Austen's novels, which reflect upper middle-class lives, are countered by Charles Dickens' bleak stories of life for the working class and unemployed.

It was during this time that Christmas was "modernized," and my guess is the grouches and grumps were not happy about the changes.

Queen Victoria and family added the German tradition of a Christmas tree in the palace. U.S. cartoonist Thomas Nast re-imaged Santa Claus as a well-fed jolly fellow instead of the traditional St. Nicholas who was gaunt and tired-looking.

Clement Moore moved Christmas gift-giving from Dec. 6 to Christmas Eve and Day. And Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" put the emphasis on compassion for those on the margin of society.

That theme is found in our country as well. My parents were part of the Lost Generation, the Silent and Greatest Generations. Public health was not a universal priority and many children died in infancy. Education was sporadic, there were no financial safety nets for anyone. The social and economic divide was obvious, but it also was a century of opportunities to advance.

They had real challenges in their lives. For many, it began with the Spanish flu immediately followed World War I. When the war ended the doughboys came home, and unemployment shot up.

There was mass hysteria about "Reds" or Marxist communists and socialists taking over the country. The nation went through Agricultural Depression of the 1920s. After that came a decade of the Great Depression, then World War II, then the Korean War.

Segregation and bigotry were an everyday specter o for all minorities; women were not allowed to have financial credit in their own names until just half a century ago; and domestic abuse was considered the cost of not being a "good" wife.

Through it all, people observed and celebrated Christmas.

Generations of women (who was mainly did the work) gave their all to make the end of the year as happy a time as possible. They baked the traditional delicacies, prepared the meal and decorated the family home.

Legions of church women, along with the more affluent "women who lunch," included community members who were excluded most of the year.

Choirs and musical groups gave concerts and recitals and led sing-alongs because music, especially group singing, lifts the spirits. Meals and often "practical" gifts were given to those in need. The Marines collected and delivered Toys for Tots.

If nothing else, we can do our part by volunteering to ring the bells for the Salvation Army Red Kettle campaigns. Some of my friends do it every year. They, like everyone else who participates in caring for others, finds their own Christmas joy multiplied.

We do all this and more because we know life is short and limited. There is no perfect time to give and receive joy.

Christmas has not changed because the old story of angels, shepherds the manger and Holy Family have not changed. They are eternal because it is all based on divine love.

How we observe that event does change, because we work hard so we can celebrate Christmas. It changes only because we are always on the lookout for new and creative ways to tell the unchangeable story in ways we can understand.

So how about we work to make this a good and memorable Christmas for those around us and ourselves? Quit shedding tears into your second or third Tom and Jerry about how miserable life has become. Tears only spoil the taste. It's last call, time to blow your nose and get to work.

Go out, get numbingly cold while you put decorations or lights on the outside of your house. That's your gift to the neighborhood. From whatever you do to start, build on it and have fun. Keep going, if only because it is contagious and will benefit others.

As for a gift to yourself, make a telephone call to an old friend, say "Merry Christmas" to someone or whatever it might be. Just be intentional and create memories for yourself. Save yourself future regret by making the connection when you can.

A few years from now, if you are still pretending to be Ebenezer Scrooge before the trio of spooks disturbed his sleep, you can snarl "Christmas ain't what it used to be." I doubt it will bring you any joy. You have a far better chance of finding it by taking positive action. Just keep going.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Republicans should have extended ACA benefits

To the editor:

This past week, the Republican led government had a chance to make things right for those of us who are about a billion dollars short of being billionaires. They chose, instead, to continue providing tax breaks to corporations and welfare to the wealthy at our expense. What does this mean for those of us who are either retired or pack a lunch to go to work everyday?

In 2025, significant cuts to Medicare funding were enacted as part of the "One Big Benefits for Billionaires Bill" (H.R. 1), which was signed into law on July 4, 2025. The bill includes over $1 trillion in reductions to health programs, primarily targeting Medicaid, but also affecting Medicare.

Projected Impact: An estimated $500 billion reduction in Medicare funding is expected between 2026 and 2034 due to automatic spending cuts triggered by paying Americans. We are seeing an impact already: ACA (Obamacare) premiums are sky rocketing, Medicare recipients are seeing increases in their premiums, deductibles and copays, while people with chronic, dangerous, or debilitating illness are seeing their safety nets shredded. This legislation introduced the largest reductions in federal health care funding in U.S. history, reflecting a broader trend of reducing federal support for health care, which will have lasting implications for millions of Americans.

Key Provisions Impacting Medicare

Total Cuts: Over $1 trillion in cuts to health programs, primarily targeting Medicaid, but also affecting Medicare.

Projected Impact: An estimated $500 billion reduction in Medicare funding is expected between 2026 and 2034 due to automatic spending cuts triggered by increased deficits.

Changes to Eligibility and Coverage

Eligibility for Non-Citizens: New restrictions limit Medicare eligibility for lawfully present immigrants, affecting many who previously qualified.

Impact on Beneficiaries: These changes will lead to reduced access to care for vulnerable populations, including older adults and those with disabilities.

Other Consequences of the Cuts

Insurance Loss: Approximately 10 million working Americans are projected to lose health insurance coverage due to these cuts.

Increased Financial Strain: The cuts are anticipated to worsen financial challenges for healthcare providers, potentially leading to fewer services and closings of smaller local hospitals.

How did this vote play out with our local federal officials? Senators Peters and Slotkin voted for the Democrats' bill which would have extended ACA subsidies, kept Medicare funding in line, and supported Medicaid. Bill Huizenga, the person this district hired to represent us in Congress, could not bother himself to move any healthcare legislation in the "Peoples" House. His recent note explaining his position went something like: "yada, yada, yada, waste, fraud and abuse, yada yada." To him, the solution to (alleged) waste, fraud and abuse is to kill these needed programs while looking the other way when it comes to the tidal wave of costly corruption originating with the tenant in our White House. By the way, did you happen to notice the administration is planning large cuts to the Veterans Administration? Is this making America great?

Keeping the Lamps Lit When Hatred Makes Its Campaigns

Dear Editor:

There are moments when winter does not merely darken the hours but seems to test the human spirit itself.

News arrives like a cold draft through the door: reports of violence against a synagogue in Australia, threats and attacks against Jewish communities, homes violated, bodies harmed, fear deliberately planted. These are not isolated events. They are campaigns—organized or emboldened hatred seeking to extinguish light by intimidation, to make people afraid to gather, to pray, to sleep, to belong.

Hatred prefers darkness.

It operates best when we are disoriented, exhausted, and tempted to look away.

This is precisely why hygge—often misunderstood as mere coziness—matters most here.

Hygge is not escapism.

It is resistance.

To keep a lamp lit in winter is not to deny the night; it is to refuse to surrender the house to it.

When hatred escalates, our attention is the first battlefield. Fear demands fixation. Rage demands amplification. Despair demands silence. Yet the ancient wisdom—shared across Jewish, Christian, and human traditions—remains steady: turn your face toward the light.

This does not mean ignoring injustice or violence. It means refusing to let darkness set the terms of our interior life.

A candle in the window after an attack says: You are not alone.

A gathered table says: We still trust one another.

A prayer spoken aloud says: The world has not ended; goodness has not fled.

For those who belong to communities historically targeted by hatred, this practice is not abstract. It is survival. Jewish families lighting candles after threats. Christian neighbors standing guard in quiet solidarity. Ordinary people choosing courage over paralysis. These are acts of hygge as moral discipline.

Light does not shout.

It does not stab.

It does not break in during the night.

It simply remains.

And remaining is powerful.

To remain focused on the light is not naïveté—it is spiritual strategy. Darkness feeds on reaction, on spectacle, on the illusion that it is inevitable. Light, by contrast, grows through attention, through repetition, through daily, almost boring faithfulness.

We keep the lamps lit not because the night is gentle, but because it is not.

In this season—between holidays, between griefs, between headlines—we do the small, defiant things:

• We speak names with care rather than slurs.

• We check on neighbors.

• We refuse to let fear choose our posture.

• We tend warmth where cold has been intentionally sown.

Hygge teaches us that winter does not end by force, but by endurance.

And so we light again tonight—not as denial, not as decoration—but as declaration:

The light is still here.

It has not been overcome.

And it will not be.

We keep it lit together.

Obituaries

Barbara Bouton-Goldberg

Barbara Bouton-Goldberg, ("Bobbie" to her New Jersey family), passed peacefully Friday, December 5th at approximately 1:00 pm in her home in Closter surrounded by her husband Philip, her family and childhood friend, Penny Axe.

Barb (to her Michigan family) was born in 1939 and raised in Allegan, Michigan. In school she excelled as a student. She loved baseball and keep stats for the baseball team. In 1957 she graduated from AHS and went on to attend and graduate from Western Michigan College studying social work. While there Barb met Jim Bouton, a handsome, energetic baseball pitcher who would eventually be signed by the New York Yankees organization. They were married in Allegan in 1962.

Jim was called up to the Yankees in 1962 and pitched in several World Series games. He then became more famous after he wrote (and she helped) the tell-all book, Ball Four. Barb followed in Jim's shadow while making lifelong friendships along the way. They had 3 wonderful children, Michael, David & Laurie. Jim's waning baseball career took the family across the country: New York, Houston, Seattle, later Durango, Mexico and a final stop in Atlanta. They divorced in 1981.

Barb's depth of sports knowledge minutia and genuine interest in sports would serve her well and made her extremely appealing to sports writers. She co-authored her own tell-all book Home Games, 1982, with Nancy Marshall another famous baseball player's wife.

Barb met "the love of her life," Philip Goldberg, a College Physics professor, on a singles' hike. They married in 1986 and she orchestrated numerous tours around the globe whether he wanted to go or not. They spent several months in China on Phil's sabbatical at the University in Bejing. Once it was discovered that Barb was also an asset the University recruited her to teach conversational English. In their off time they traveled the country and made many friends and memories. On another sabbatical they spent several months in Los Alamos, New Mexico. While there they immersed themselves in the local culture and hiked the area almost daily. Their extensive travels were the subjects of many of their holiday cards each year.

Bobbie's volunteering was selfless and relentless. She volunteered annually at both the Englewood and Closter Library book sales. She assisted in developing the "Historical Englewood Eclectic Walking Tour." Was a member of the Englewood and Closter (+20 years) Historical Societies.

She co-authored with the "Friends of the Englewood Library" the historical book, "Englewood and Englewood Cliffs", published in 1998.

Barbara Bouton-Goldberg

She was a constant "Friend of the Lustron House Museum" in Closter (1950 metal house).

Bobbie served on the "Closter Historic Preservation Commission" as a Member of Board, also on the "Closter Environmental Commission." Bobbie work tirelessly at the "MacBain Farm Park" and served on their Committee.

She was a member of multiple book clubs at the same time.

There are many other causes she supported financially, too numerous to list.

The Borough of Closter recognized Bobbie's volunteering with a Proclamation of Appreciation of Public Service for her dedicated unlimited, selfless amounts of time focusing on historical preservation and restoration of landmark properties, immeasurable knowledge, endless dedication and invaluable research to insure the preservation of Closter's rich history. The Mayor called for recognition of her on Nov. 24th, 2025.

Barb "Bobbie" is survived by her loving husband, Philip Goldberg, her sons Michael and David Bouton, grand-children; Alexandria and John. Her sisters Janet (Vic) Zajac and Fay (Maria) Tanner. And step-son Daniel (Caren) Goldberg and grand-children Hannah and Jake.

She was preceded in death by her daughter Laurie Bouton, mother, Sylvia Tanner, father Jack Boyer, her brother Dennis Heister, and step-son Noah Goldberg.

Barb's warm, sincere personality drew people to her. She was naturally open and accepting of all people. Her sense of humor was well known to include Mad Magazine, the cartoons Charlie Brown and Far Side.

Her smile and laughter preceded her. Wherever she focused her interests she soon had friends. Whether she was volunteering at the Englewood Library, substitute teaching, getting her car fixed at Siracuso's, or attending a cultural event at Lincoln Center, she rarely walked away without making a positive impression and a new friend. She was loved by many and known by many more. She embodied hope, resilience, patience and goodwill. The world was a far better place with her in it.

Barb was cremated and will be interred at Brookside Cemetery in Englewood, New Jersey at a date to be determined. Also a memorial of her life will take place at a future date.

Thank you to all the people that helped through this difficult time.

Please take a minute to remember her and her effect on the world.

LIVING WITH GRIEF

BY RONNIE EWING/ AFTERCARE SPECIALIST

LIVING WITH GRIEF, is a monthly column provided by GordenFuneral Residence. Each month LIVING WITH GRIEF will feature some helpful advice as you the reader move forward through your personal grieving process, or simply want to be educated to help those whom you may know have recently experienced a loss, or traumatic event.

Coping with the Holidays.. The ability to cope with the holidays for the most part can be handled quite easily by avoiding the old habit of being busy to avoid being alone, or filling your time so you don't have to think. Grief and mourning should be endured, but in a positive way. Here are some suggestions from the International Grief Institute:

- Recognize sorrow can't be fixed.
- Respect how one chooses to cope. (This excludes self harm..)
- Resist the urge to fill up your calendar.
- Don't let sorrow steal your joy.
- Volunteer in the community. Play Santa, try Caroling, serve the less fortunate.
- Do above in honor of your loved one.

Remember, we can avoid the negative entrapments of bereavement by celebrating thanks for whatever measure of time we had with our loved ones and also hold on or add to traditions they held on to while they were with us. Holidays can be festive while you and I continue, LIVING WITH GRIEF.

Letters to the Editor

Supreme Court and the Constitution plus government issues.

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank letter to the editor writer Vilius Kampas for a well written letter which gives insights into today's political climate.

The doctrine "Opus Dei" I researched and found it to be influential in many of the Supreme Courts decisions. I have often wondered why Supreme Court justices have ignored written law found in the Constitution in their recent rulings.

The Opus Dei theories were founded by St.Josemaria Escriva in 1928, and its headquarters is in Rome. Today the organization is secretive, and the current leader is Fernando Ocariz Brana.

Opus Dei supports authoritarian regimes, elitism, and misogyny. The philosophy is also bound to secrecy, control, and manipulation through deception which misleads its members about their rights and status under Canon Law. Their goal is to completely control your environment.

Leonard Leo is a follower of Opus Dei. He is also influential with Republican Presidents when naming Supreme Court justices. He gives Republican Presidents a list from which to choose potential candidates. The following justices were on Leonard Leo's list that are presently on the Supreme Court: 1. Neil Gorsuch, 2. John Roberts, 3. Samuel Lito, 4. Brett Kavanaugh, and 5. Amy Coney Barrett. None of these justices are followers of Opus Dei, but to be considered by Leonard Leo he knows how they will vote which favors " Totalitarianism ".

It is easier to understand why justices have voted in favor of giving the present administration additional powers that contradict the CONSTITUTION. It does not make it right or ethical, but understandable. It dilutes the separation of powers granted in the US constitution. The judicial branch (Supreme Court) is behaving like a right wing political party. I gave never agreed with lifetime appointments, and in today's political climate many not so good decisions are being decided.

My biggest fear is the private police force that has taken place. A very gross example is the arrest of two firefighters legally here in the United States doing vital work fighting wild fires. What could be more noble? One aspect to the wild fires: Trump had the crazy and uneducated idea of diverting 5.2 billion gallons of water to California with what he claimed would stop all wild fires. Of course the water never got close to the wild fires. It did cause some major flooding to many areas. Fortunately local governmental officials contacted the Army Corp of Engineers to stop the flooding and potential deaths, and yet he bragged about diverting water. A waste of one of our precious resources.

That divertion cost unbelievable amounts of money that could have been used for many worthwhile endeavors. First term Former Secretary of State Rex Tillerson may have been accurate in his assessment of President Trump's cognitive abilities.

The worst part of how the country is begun are the incompetent people put in charge of governmental agencies. The dismissals of career experts in their field of work and replaced by loyalists who have limited background or experience shows a total lack of leadership. Our country will surprise as history has shown that democracy no matter how fragile it will not break.

The State of the Economy is in shambles. The U.S. jobs market has gone from healthy and robust to lethargic during the first 8 months with Trump in the White House.

August numbers on jobs were 22,000 while the unemployment ticked up to 4.3%. Revisions showed the economy lost b 13,000 jobs in June. A recent poll showed President Trump's approval rating in July was 38% while Trump's trying to find somebody to blame other than his own policies.

President Trump claimed without evidence that deporting immigrants would protect "Black Jobs" , but Black unemployment has claimed to 7.5 %the highest since 2021.Also since April manufacturers have cut 42,000jobs and builders (construction) have downsized by 8,000. The logging and mining se torso which includes oil and gas have shed 12,000 jobs since January.

Energy administrators say an average of 100,000 barrels (oil) a day will be lost. Electricity costs have increased 4.6% so far this year, something Trump promised would decrease.

Trump said in a speech that are year from now everything will change. He just admitted that the Bureau of Labor Statistics were not rigged or manipulated.

Stephen Moore an economist and conservative Heritage Foundation member and supporter of Trump said the labor market is definitely softening. He also said the economy was adjusting to the higher tariffs and immigration reductions that surely will lower the pool of available workers (the deportations are creating havoc to the economy).

In my wildest dreams I never thought the DOJ and Pentagon would be filled with scandals.

Investigating veterans who are now serving as Senators, and wanting to charge them with a crime for mak a video telling service men and women that they do not need to honor illegal orders. The oath that service people take is to honor the constitution not any individual including the commander-in- chief . Since when is honoring the Constitution and not following illegal orders a crime.

The President of the United States wants these Senators executed, and most Republicans are silent. It seems that if a person is truthful and ethical they are deemed a criminal, and if one is willing to break the law they are rewarded. How distressing!

This should not be tolerated!

Each week more problems are occurring, and leadership is lacking. Citizens need to pay attention to what is happening to the fabric of our country. Demand action from your representatives!

Mark Austin, Hopkins

Reader suggests 3 changes to health policies

Dear Mike the Editor,

After reading your critique of the Congressional Schedule last week, I called a friend to see what I was missing. One thing that is not immediately apparent from the roughly one-quarter empty schedule (available on Roll Call) is that the empty space belongs to committees. Committees meet only when the chamber is not in session.

Committees are meant to be the workhorses of Congress, yet all most of us see is political grandstanding during presidential appointment hearings.

Committees are actually responsible for full oversight of government agencies; drilling down to bill language and intent; exposing special favors in department budgets; debating policy disagreements; and more.

The fact that committees aren't doing this contributes to our current healthcare mess: inflation, fraud, ongoing patient debt, and $ 38.5 Trillion in national debt. (You won't believe the dearth of video on CSPAN's Committee page.)

This is why the current healthcare debate is taking place in hallways, sound bites, and press conferences. Without strong leadership in Congress, that role is left to the president. So that's who I wrote on Monday.

Dear President Trump,

Thank you so much for working on HSA Accounts and eliminating wasteful subsidies that benefit insurance companies.

Could you make three changes to HSA Accounts?

Please DECOUPLE these accounts from the wrap-around insurance mandate. It's a huge tax required to donate to them, just another gift to insurance companies enabling them to control our care.

Next, please RAISE THE CAP of annual donations to $15,000 or even more.

Finally, please EXPAND QUALIFIED HSA SPENDING to include Health Sharing memberships and insurance premiums. That gives people real choice, instead of slavery to insurance plans, protocols, and "managed care" which is a joke.

An additional bonus would be allowing people to donate from their own HSA to others in need, and to bequeath it to their children.

I'm a lifelong nurse who entered health policy when Obamacare was passed. In all my study and work with patients and families, I believe these three changes would make the greatest difference for the people who truly need better options to pay for healthcare.

This path would lift MANY working poor and self-employed out of Medicaid dependence and Marketplace subsidies. It would let them manage their own pre-tax dollars for their healthcare, and I'm convinced it would dramatically reduce fraud. People guard their own money. Besides, we have banks and the IRS guarding these accounts against misuse.

Perhaps the greatest benefit of this plan for the country would be restoring people's economic voice in healthcare. Special interests have controlled huge pots of money from employers and government, and used it to lead patients and clinicians around by the nose for FAR too long.

Thank you for all you do, Mr. President. God bless you for your heart to secure our lives, liberties, and property including conscience.

Sincerely,
Abigail Nobel,
BSN, RN, MA

Two flee late-night laundry explosion, blaze

By Scott Sullivan
Writer

A gas leak explosion at Laundry Tyme in Douglas Dec. 11 damaged the Weathervane Mall business but two customers, then inside, got out unhurt.

The Saugatuck Township Fire District responded to a 4:30 a.m. call reporting smoke and an explosion at the 102 S. Blue Star Hwy. laundromat, part of the Zoom Express franchise.

The customers told first responders they smelled gas before the explosion.

The fire spread with smoke pouring out, the air ducts ablaze and smoke detectors sounding.

The STFD ladder truck was dispatched, plus mutual aid gas company assistance were requested.

The night sky lit up, Blue Star was shut down as Douglas police, Life EMS plus Graafschap, Fennville, Ganges and Hamilton firefighters arrived.

A water supply was established by 5:01 a.m. Gas was shut off and Consumers Energy crews arrived.

The response lasted several hours before the scene was last cleared at 11:16 a.m.

Zoom Express owners Brian and Anne McGowan said on social media afterward that the customers, smelling gas, were walking out when the explosion, which originated in the utility room of the full-service side, occurred.

"We are incredibly grateful they made it out safely," the owners posted. "Emergency personnel responded almost immediately. Their quick action and professionalism helped contain the situation, and we are deeply thankful for their service."

They reported the vast majority of laundry and dry-cleaning items are intact, aside from smoke exposure. Everything will be rewashed, repackaged and available for pickup on Monday (Dec. 15).

"We are currently working on the self-service side of the mat, and we hope to have full-service operations back up within the next day or so, The self-service area will remain closed for about a week while cleanup continues, the McGowans said.

LAST MINUTE GIFT IDEAS

As Christmas draws near, many shoppers find themselves searching for thoughtful gifts with limited time remaining. While the calendar may be tight, meaningful presents can still be found with a little creativity and planning. Last minute gifts often benefit from focusing on usefulness, personal connection, and local availability.

Gift cards remain one of the most practical options for late shoppers. Cards to local restaurants, coffee shops, bookstores, and small retailers offer flexibility while supporting neighborhood businesses. Experience-based gift cards, such as for concerts, fitness classes, or seasonal activities, provide memories that last well beyond the holidays.

Locally made goods are another strong choice when time is short. Handmade candles, baked goods, artwork, and specialty foods can often be found at local shops or holiday markets. These items not only offer uniqueness but also reflect the character of the community. Many artisans package their products in gift-ready formats, saving additional time.

Subscriptions and memberships make thoughtful presents that require little physical shopping. Streaming services, digital magazines, audiobooks, and meal planning programs can often be purchased and delivered instantly. Memberships to museums, zoos, gyms, or cultural organizations provide year-round enjoyment and are easy to arrange online or at local offices.

Personalized gifts can still be meaningful even without long production times. Framed family photos, printed photo books, or custom calendars can often be created quickly through local print shops or same-day services. Handwritten notes explaining the significance of the gift can add a personal touch that recipients appreciate.

Practical gifts also shine during last minute shopping. Quality blankets, kitchen tools, cozy socks, or winter accessories are items many people use daily. Choosing something well-made and seasonally appropriate often proves more valuable than elaborate packaging.

For children, books, board games, puzzles, and craft kits remain dependable options. These gifts encourage learning and creativity while offering shared family experiences. Many local bookstores and toy shops provide knowledgeable staff who can help guide selections quickly.

While last minute shopping can feel rushed, it also offers an opportunity to focus on thoughtful simplicity. Gifts that support local businesses, create shared experiences, or meet everyday needs often carry lasting value. With intention and care, even last minute choices can deliver holiday joy and meaning.

Barrel needs varnish, city concedes

By Scott Sullivan
Writer

The City of Douglas, criticized on social media for lack of maintenance on the iconic Root Beer Barrel, responded i last week it will look to varnishing the redwood structure more frequently.

"I spent 6 years of my life," former vendor Mick White posted Dec. 8 on social, "and my own $$ on materials and labor EVERY fall to make sure the Root Beer Barrel was varnished and ready to withstand our brutal winters.

"Two years later this is what the Root Beer Barrel is looking like going into winter?" White went on, posting recent pictures of it he had taken.

"I was told the quickest way to destroy the Root Beer Barrel would be to not take the varnishing seriously every fall ... and so that's what I did. I took it seriously

"My question," White went on, "is ANYONE TAKING IT SERIOUSLY? The picture shows it down to the original wood. This cannot be good for it."

"We've seen recent comments," the city responded in a public statement Dec. 10, "about the condition of the Root Beer Barrel and wanted to share a quick update.

"The city has a maintenance contract with Vork (Brothers Painting) to perform exterior maintenance on the Barrel on a three-year cycle, and work has been done within the last couple years.

"After the Barrel closed for the season, (current vendor) Todd Martinson met with us and let us know that, given the weather and exposure to the elements, it may be time to increase the frequency of that maintenance," the statement went on.

"In response, the city reached out to Vork to visit the site and evaluate whether we should move to annual maintenance going forward. While some photos online show areas of peeling, those images do not reflect the condition of the entire structure.

"That said, we agree that the Barrel likely needs a more regular touch-up schedule, and we are actively working on that.

"We want to assure everyone that the city is not neglecting the Root Beer Barrel. Todd and our partners have put a lot of time and care into making the Barrel a better place for residents and visitors, and we appreciate the community's passion for this iconic landmark.

"We'll continue to fine-tune our maintenance plan, so it stays in great shape for years to come," the city's statement.

about books and reading. Summer Reading Program is exhausting, yet so much fun."

This past summer marked the highest participation numbers for the Summer Reading Program—1,245 children signed up and 852 finished the program.

"The library is super busy in the summer and we could not be more excited to see that," DeVries said.

DeVries also planned the adult programs at ODL.

"Most of these programs are fun, entertaining, creative and educational," she said. "Yet the ones that have been the most meaningful to me are the ones where people get to share life with each other.

"The program that stands out most for me is the one we offered for Alzheimer caretakers. By the end of the evening most of us had shed tears because that is a hard journey to be on and it was powerful for people to share with each other. Working with all age levels has made my job fun and meaningful."

The COVID pandemic, which hit during the middle of DeVries' tenure as assistant director/program and outreach director, presented its share of unique challenges.

"The day we shut down, Andrea came up to me and asked if I could do an online Storytime," DeVries said. "I laughingly responded with 'no.'"

But it didn't take long for DeVries to realize the importance of continuing to provide those early childhood literacy opportunities, even when it couldn't be done in the traditional in-person setting.

So, she did a weekly Storytime, working through the alphabet. Patrons could also drive through the library's curbside window to get a craft to go that went along with that letter of the alphabet.

"It is not quite as fun reading a book to a camera as it is reading to cute kids, but there were so many people watching these sessions and I know they appreciated them," DeVries said. "One of our patrons sent me a picture of all of the letter creations they did hanging on a wall.

And while DeVries was ecstatic to get back to in-person programs, looking back she realizes there were some positives to come out of COVID.

"We added wonderful services during this time including the curbside window, Rising Reader Kits, STEAM kits and after-hours pickup lockers, which we still offer," she said.

In her new role as community liaison and community service manager, DeVries plans to continue her focus on building community.

"Even though I am going to miss doing all of the programs, I will still be involved with the patrons in these new roles," she said.

Estelle is happy that DeVries will still be around moving forward.

"Diane's creativity brought everything from big special events and hands-on activities to reindeer visits and foam parties, all while strengthening partnerships that expanded opportunities for local families," Estelle said. "And she'll still be here helping to make ODL a great place for the community.

"We would like to extend a whole-hearted thank you to Diane for 10 years of incredible contributions here at the Otsego District Library as our assistant director and programming and outreach specialist."

OHS choirs host Medieval Dinner

On Friday, Dec. 12, and Saturday, Dec. 13, the Otsego High School choir program traveled back to the medieval era.

In a tradition that spans several decades, the OHS choir hosted its Medieval Dinner, which takes place every two years and also serves as the Christmas concert.

Attendees enjoyed dinner, music and a show, all set in the medieval era.

Both nights were sold out, including additional tickets that were sold for the second floor that overlooked the cafeteria and were for dessert only. (Photos provided by OPS)

Santa Claus makes appearance at Ransom Library

It was beginning to look a lot like Christmas at the Ransom District Library in Plainwell.

Ransom hosted a Christmas-themed event on Saturday, Dec. 13. The event included crafts, treats and other fun activities for children (and adults) of all ages.

The highlight of the event was an appearance by the man in the red suit, Santa Claus himself.

"Thank you to everyone who came to the Library to visit Santa today." Ransom officials said in a Facebook post. "It was so lovely to see our community come together to celebrate the holidays.

"Santa visits, crafts, cookies, a scavenger hunt and book giveaways were all a part of today's festivities." (Photos provided)

Laskowski, Simpson lead Trailblazers past Clippers

By Jason Wesseldyk
Sports Editor

Senior Natalia Laskowski and junior Mylah Simpson were expected to lead the offense for the Saugatuck girls basketball team this season.

That was definitely the case when the Trailblazers hosted Martin on Friday, Dec. 12.

Laskowski scored a game-topping 20 points, while Simpson was close behind with 17 points as Saugatuck earned the 57-42 victory.

The Trailblazers improved to 2-0 following a 62-44 season-opening victory over Wyoming Potter's House on Wednesday, Dec. 10.

Martin coach Eric Zudweg, in his first season as head coach in Martin after a one-year stint as an assistant coach, was duly impressed by Laskowski and Simpson.

"Laskowski and Simpson both had phenomenal nights," Zudweg said. "They are really great players and even when you feel like you do a good job against them, they can score in so many different ways—at the rim, on perimeter, on fast breaks.

"(Saugatuck coach) Kevin (Tringali) has done a great job with their program. They are skilled, fundamental and play the right way."

Laskowski scored seven first-quarter points, including a 3-pointer. Simpson added four points in the stanza, with two of those coming at the line.

Simpson finished a 8-of-8 at the charity stripe.

Freshman Charlee Gustafson nearly had a double-double for Saugatuck, adding nine points and 15 rebounds.

Saugatuck led 14-9 after one quarter and 27-18 at halftime.

Martin used a 20-7 run in the second half to cut a 20-point deficit to 47-40 in the fourth quarter, but the Clippers would get no closer.

"As expected, Martin came in scrappy like they always do, as we could never quite pull away," Tringali said. "With that said, every time they punched us we punched them back. Our kids were resilient."

Torryn Harris paced Martin (0-2) with 15 points. Anna Jager added 12 points, followed by Aliyah DeGlopper with eight and Maggie Jager with five.

"I thought our girls played unbelievably tough from start to finish," Zugweg said. "We had a stretch in the third where we made a few made too many turnovers that led to scores the other way and put us down 20 for a moment. But our girls never gave up.

"We fell short, but I was happy with our toughness and grit, especially against a really good team in Saugatuck. We need to take care of the basketball better as a team and limit those fast break points.

In its win over Potter's House, Saugatuck closed the game on a 17-2 run in the fourth quarter to break open what had been a close affair.

The game was knotted at 26-26 at the intermission and the Trailblazers clung to a 44-42 lead after three quarters.

"I'm so proud of our kids tonight," Tringali said. "Potter's House gave us everything they had and our kids kept their composure."

Senior Penny Grob grabbed some key rebounds. She also had 13 points, matching Laskowski for second on the team behind Simpson's game-topping 21 points.

Martin opened its season with a game against Zion Christian, with the Clippers falling 43-29.

Harris scored nine points, followed by seven each from DeGlopper and Alley Bacon.

Martin faced quarter deficits of 9-4, 22-12 and 26-18.

Tigers claim two straight wins to even record at 2-2

By Jason Wesseldyk

Gotham City had the Dynamic Duo of Batman and Robin.

In its SAC Lakeshore contest against visiting Watervliet on Friday, Dec. 12, the Allegan boys basketball team had a dynamic duo of its own: Bradyn Kosiorowski and Ayden Fusco.

Kosiorowski and Fusco both collected double-doubles, with Kosiorowski going for 19 points and 12 rebounds, while Fusco racked up 15 points and 21 rebounds.

That was enough to lead the Tigers to the 52-37 win, giving them two victories in a row after starting the season with a pair of losses.

Fusco also blocked five shots for Allegan.

"Even though we were shorthanded for this game, that did not deter our guys' effort," first-year Allegan coach Brian Baker said. "I feel this is the most complete game we have played so far this season.

"There are things we still need to work on and improve, but the boys played hard for all four quarters."

Allegan held leads at the end of each of the first three quarters, though it could never fully separate from the Panthers.

The Tigers were up 18-13 after one quarter, 24-21 at halftime and 35-30 at the end of three quarters.

But in the final frame, Allegan used a 17-7 scoring advantage to pull away and end any hope Watervliet players had of mounting a comeback.

"Holding Watervliet to 37 points was a great showing by our defense," Baker said. "That's the lowest amount of points in a game this season that we have given up."

LJ Dial nearly gave Allegan a third double-double effort, as he finished with 12 points and nine rebounds. Colby Bishop chipped in with six points.

On Tuesday, Dec. 9, Allegan hosted Constantine and was in control throughout the game, taking an 18-2 lead after the opening stanza and winning 48-39.

"After two losses in a row to start the season, we got back on track," Baker said. "We were not as dominant in the second and third quarters compared to the first, but we still played better this game than the previous two games."

The Tigers led 25-14 at the intermission and 38-27 entering the final stanza.

"I was proud that we led the whole game," Baker said.

Fusco nearly had a triple-double in the game, going for 11 points, 12 rebounds and eight blocks. Brandon Thrash and Kosiorowski had nine points.

Nathan Martinez and Dial went for seven and six points, respectively.

GRAND RAPIDS—Plainwell boys swim & dive coach Andrea Murphy said the Grand Rapids City Sprint is one of the more fun meets her team has all season.

And the Trojans had every reason to enjoy themselves at this year's version of the event, as they placed second thanks to some really strong performances.

"This is a really fun meet for our team and to have at the beginning of the season," Murphy said. "It allows everyone to swim in some capacity."

The Trojans had one first-place finish in the 11 events, as the diving trio of Aidan Ranger, Phil Mathis and Logan Stuifenbergen racked up 194.1 points to finish nearly 60 points ahead of the runner-up trio from Caledonia.

Plainwell's top showing in the relays came in the 200 medley and 200 backstroke, as the Trojans placed second in each.

The 200 medley team of Ben Sparks, Davis Nooney, Alex Steele and Vander Summerer posted a time of 1:52.47. The 200 backstroke team of Matt Malantinski, Hiro Nguyen, Joseph Hoffman and Grady Nugent finished at 2:01.45.

Individually, Nooney led the way by placing second in the 50 breaststroke at 33.28.

Sparks was third in both the 50 backstroke (28.46) and the 50 free (23.9), while Steele was third in both the 100 IM (1:03.1) and the 50 butterfly (27.63).

"We have a large senior class that gives our team a lot of depth and good leadership that will help us out a lot this season," Murphy said. "We also have some newcomers to our team who we are excited about.

"I think everyone had a great meet considering how early it is in the season."

Clippers upend Trailblazers to pick up season's first win

By Jason Wesseldyk

SAUGATUCK—It's been said that death and taxes are the only certainties in life.

But there was another certainty when the boys basketball teams from Saugatuck and Martin met on Friday, Dec. 12: one team would secure its first victory of the season, while the other would have to wait at least one more game to collect a win.

The Clippers were the team to secure their first victory, as they used a strong defensive effort to post the 49-19 triumph over the host Trailblazers.

Martin limited Saugatuck to seven or fewer points in each quarter, including three points in each of the first two stanzas.

"This was a good overall game for us," said Martin coach Corby Callaway, whose team improved to 1-3. "Our intensity and effort were high, and we took care of the ball a little better tonight than we have been."

Callaway was particularly pleased with the way Blake Sweeting and Jackson Kennedy performed in the paint.

Sweeting tallied the double-double with 13 points and 14 rebounds. Kennedy added seven points and 10 rebounds.

The pair also combined for five steals, while Sweeting added two assists.

"Blake and Jackson were great for us inside, controlling the paint on both ends of the court," Callaway said.

Ethan Fitzpatrick led the Clippers with 15 points to go with four rebounds and three blocks, while Weson Elkins had five points, six assists and four steals.

"Weson stepped up huge to lead the team from his point guard position, with our starting point guard was out sick," Callaway said. "And Ethan hit some timely baskets to get us going."

Callaway also lauded the defensive play of Mani Smit, how had five steals.

Martin held an 8-3 lead after one quarter and was up 19-6 by the time halftime rolled around.

Saugatuck coach Ty Rock complimented Martin's performance while also offering an honest assessment of his team's play thus far.

"Martin has some size and played hard," he said. "We were not physical and haven't been a physical team yet this year.

"There are a lot of things that we as a team need to clean up in order to be competitive. There are some basic fundamentals that we lack which are making things way more difficult. The goal is to keep working on those fundamentals that have been neglected and hopefully that allows us to get better each day and improve over the course of the season."

On Tuesday, Dec. 9, Martin fell to Grand Rapids Sacred Heart 41-38.

The game had been tied 35-35 at the conclusion of the third quarter.

"We let one slip away," Callaway said. "Missed free throws and turnovers cost us big time."

Sweeting had a huge game in the loss, going for 17 points, 10 rebounds, seven steals and seven blocks.

Kennedy added eight points and nine rebounds, while Elkins chipped in with five rebounds and five assists.

The game with the Clippers was the third in a five-day span for Saugatuck. The Trailblazers fell to Holland Calvary (56-41) on Tuesday, Dec. 9, after dropping a 62-27 decision to Parchment a day earlier.

Otsego boys secure win over Edwardsburg

OTSEGO—According to a famous saying, the third time's the charm.

For the Otsego boys basketball team, the third quarter was the charm when the Bulldogs hosted Wolverine Conference rival Edwardsburg on Thursday, Dec. 11.

The Bulldogs used a 13-5 scoring run in the third stanza to snap what had been a 27-27 time and ultimately collect the 49-43 win.

"This was a good, gritty conference win," Otsego coach Matt Dennis said.

Dennis was particularly pleased with his team's effort on the defensive end of the court.

"Defensively, we communicated much better and were much more active getting out to shooters, making them work for everything," he said. "This is the second game in a row that our pressure and effort showed up and made a big difference."

Leeland Longcore paced Otsego (2-2) with 22 points. That included a 10-of-10 effort from the free throw line.

Longcore also had a team-best three assists and was second on the team with four rebounds. Jacob Mercer had five rebounds.

Jack Cook added 10 points, making good on all five of his shots from the floor.

"Offensively, we did a good job attacking the paint and finishing plays," Dennis said. "Jack gave us great energy and finished well around the rim."

The win was the second in a row for Otsego following a pair of losses to open the season.

"We still things to clean up, but this was a solid team win and a step in the right direction," Dennis said.

Wayland boys beat Sparta, improve to 3-0

WAYLAND—Six players scored in double figures for the Wayland boys basketball team in its game with visiting Sparta on Friday, Dec. 12.

That balanced attack helped propel the Wildcats to the 60-43 win, keeping them unbeaten for the season at 3-0.

Brady Perrin and Tyler Pehrson were the only two Wayland players to reach double figures in scoring, as Perrin went for 17 and Pehrson went for 15.

Skyler Swinehart was next with seven points, followed by the trio of Elijah Warsen, Easton Williams and Brayden Calkins with six each.

The game remained fairly close for the first half, as Wayland went up 15-11 after one quarter and 30-25 at the intermission.

By the time the fourth quarter rolled around, the Wildcats' lead was up to double digits at 42-32.

Wayland girls get past host Hamilton

HAMILTON—Addi Sikorski and Jordan Grevenstuk scored a combined 12 first-quarter points for the Wayland girls basketball team in the Wildcats' road game with Hamilton on Friday, Dec. 12.

That was the start of a big night for each, as Sikorski scored a game-best 22 points and Grevenstuk added 15 to lead Wayland to the 58-31 win.

The big first quarter by Sikorski and Grevenstuk—who each scored six points in the frame—helped stake the Wildcats to a 15-8 lead. Wayland's lead remained seven points—27-20—at halftime before a 13-5 edge in the third quarter extended the advantage to 40-25.

Sikorski added eight points in the second quarter, six in the third and two in the fourth. Grevenstuk accounted for one of Wayland's two 3-pointers, with the other from Marissa Ainsworth.

For Hamilton, Leah Brink scored a team-best nine points. She and Kelsey Mersman—who finished with eight points—each had one 3-pointer.

Emma Slotman added seven points in the loss.

The loss evened Hamilton's record at 1-1 following an improbable season-opening win against Coopersville on Tuesday, Dec. 9.

In that game, the Hawkeyes trailed 41-29 with 1:31 left and appeared to be destined for the loss.

But Hamilton rallied to score the game's final 13 points to secure the 42-41 win in comeback fashion.

Slotman spearheaded the rally, scoring the first 11 points during that game-ending run. That point total included two 3-pointers, an and-one and two other free throws.

Brink tied the score at 41-41 and put Hamilton up 42-41 on a pair of free throws with 6.7 seconds remaining.

Slotman finished with 15 points. Brink and Brooke Petroelje added 13 points each.

Sarah Brink had the only other point for Hamilton as she sank a fourth-quarter free throw.

Plainwell starts season with three straight victories

By Jason Wesseldyk

PLAINWELL—It was a case of David vs. Goliath when the girls basketball team from Plainwell hosted Indiana's Lake Central in the Michigana Hoops Shootout on Saturday, Dec. 13.

And just like in the original version of the story, David came out on top.

Plainwell (approximate enrollment of 800) bested Lake Central (approximate enrollment of 3,000) 48-37 to improve to 3-0 under first-year coach Elexis Buchanan.

Kaylee VanAtter and Alyssa Weldon earned co-MVP honors for leading the Trojans with 17 and 15 respective points.

Lake Central fell to 7-5.

"Lake Central is already so many games ahead of us in terms of games played, and they're also equipped with obvious height advantages, Buchanan said. "And while we did start off a bit rocky, we have been working on being fearless and utilizing every member of this team."

Plainwell fell behind 10-1 to start the game, but rallied to take a 24-14 lead at halftime thanks to an 18-4 edge in the second quarter.

Lake Central managed to cut the deficit to a single point at 32-31 entering the final stanza, but Plainwell wouldn't be denied.

"I think after tonight's win the girls are really starting to buy in and trust the process," Buchanan said. "They are realizing that all the work we've put in in the offseason and how hard we work during practice is for a reason.

"Their eyes are starting to light up, and I can see the new love they are finding for the game. Tonight was another test for us, and it wasn't pretty at all, but we showed a lot of heart and ended up with a win."

The Lake Central game capped a busy first week for the Trojans.

Plainwell bested Paw Paw 62-35 in the Wolverine Conference opener on Friday, Dec. 12, after beating Hastings 58-29 in the season opener on Tuesday, Dec. 9.

In the Paw Paw game, Anna Overway scored 18 points, while Tessie Kiel, Weldon and Alayana Ranney joined her in double figures with 13, 12 and 10 points, respectively.

"Everyone collectively worked extremely well together under a tough pressure put on by Paw Paw," Buchanan said. "We're getting in the groove of sharing the ball and seeing the open person on offense and never letting up on defense. We obviously still have some work to do, but we are still very early in the season.

"One thing that sets this group apart for me is the girls' curiosity and willingness to learn. I think just with having that mindset, it'll catapult us into a world of unlimited possibilities."

Plainwell led 16-7 after one quarter and 30-15 at halftime.

Overway was also the leading scorer against Hastings, as she finished with 16 points. She also had 15 rebounds.

"A good majority of her points came from the paint," Buchanan said of Overway. "She really cleans up well around the rim and does a good job of hustling and getting those 50-50 balls. Both will help moving forward in the season."

Weldon and Kiel both finished the night with 11 points.

"We had some impactful minutes from the rest of the team as well, and the girls enjoyed themselves overall," Buchanan said.

"Although I am very happy with tonight's outcome and how well the girls played together, we still had a few mental lapses on defense. We also struggled a bit from the free throw line (12-of-24). But overall, I truly believe that progress is a process and we're well on our way to building something great."

Allegan girls come up just short in season opener

It was a game of two halves for the Allegan girls basketball team in its season-opening contest against visiting Watervliet on Friday, Dec. 12.

The Tigers started strong, taking a 20-12 lead into halftime.

But foul trouble plagued Allegan in the second half and the Panthers took advantage, holding a 25-14 scoring edge to claim the 37-34 victory.

The game was the first for the Tigers under the leadership of veteran high school hoops coach Ernie Ramirez.

"I'm very proud of the girls as we only have two returning varsity players, a new system and new terminology and still almost got the win," Ramirez said. "I have high hopes for this team even in the loss."

Freshman Camdyn Drozd shined for the Tigers.

In her first varsity game, Drozd tallied a team-best 10 points and collected nine rebounds to finish one rebound shy of a double-double.

"Camdyn did a great job for us," Ramirez said.

Senior Jadyn VandenAkker was one of three players who got in foul trouble for the Tigers and was forced to the bench for much of the third and fourth quarters.

She finished with nine points on just seven shots in 21 minutes of action.

"In the second half with three key players in fouls trouble, one starter out to injury and press break on the opposite side of the court, the girls were a little disoriented with unfamiliar lineups and lack of offense identity," Ramirez said.

Ellie Ziemelis added seven points in the losing cause.

WILLIAMSTON—Hamilton senior wrestling Tyler Block reached a career milestone at the Williamston Duals on Saturday, Dec. 13.

Going 4-1 for the day, Block locked up the 100th victory of his career.

"Tyler has had an incredible past three seasons at Hamilton," Hamilton coach Trenton Holyfield said. "He looks to add many more wins this season and get on the podium at the state tournament.

As a team, the Hawkeyes went 2-3 for the day, suffering losses to Birch Run (47-35), Williamston (50-24) and Stevensville-Lakeshore (46-33) before earning wins over Vicksburg (65-18) and Berkley (54-12).

Chase Morrison and Bryce Morrison each went a perfect 5-0 for Hamilton. Weston Geerlings, Broden Van Wieren and Shawn Lawson joined Block at 4-1.

The Hamilton girls wrestling team, meanwhile, was at the Kent County Classic the same day and finished 11th out of 30 teams.

Korra Kapenga led the Hawkeyes, going 4-0 at 125 pounds to place first out of 17 wrestlers. Ana Ruggles went 3-1 at 130 to place fifth out of 15 wrestlers, while Mykayla Provance was 2-2 at 120 to place fourth out of 16 wrestlers.

Otsego girls roll to pair of victories

OTSEGO—So far, so good for the Otsego girls basketball team.

After opening the season with a 64-20 road win over Harper Creek on Tuesday, Dec. 9, the Bulldogs cruised to the 70-49 victory over visiting Edwardsburg to open Wolverine Conference play on Thursday, Dec. 11.

Against the Eddies, Otsego jumped out to a quick 13-3 lead, forcing Edwardsburg to call a timeout early in the game.

By halftime, the Bulldogs led 37-16.

"Once again, our pressure and pace were pretty devastating for Edwardsburg," Otsego coach Tony Koshar said. "I love the way we are running the floor and getting to spots to convert easy offense."

Brooke Smalldon had a monster effort in the win, scoring 23 points and snagging 10 rebounds for her first double-double of the season. She added a team-best four assists along with four steals, which matched Peyton Johnson for second on the team behind Madden Fitzpatrick with five.

Fitzpatrick added nine rebounds and eight points, while Audrey Lingbeek had nine points, three rebounds and three assists.

"Audrey and Madden really stuffed the stat sheet, while Olivia Hildebrand and Peyton Johnson set the tone for us defensively while also doing a great job of handling the ball as we had single digit turnovers," Koshar said.

Koshar also praised Kendall Hough, who scored her first varsity points, finishing with five. Another highlight was Sophomore Kendall Hough scoring her first varsity points.

In the Harper Creek game, Otsego led 16-4 after one quarter and didn't allowed just 10 points in each half.

"It was a good start to the season, but definitely had some of the first game mistakes that we can clean up," Koshar said. "Our pressure really forced Harper into a ton of turnovers in the first half but we weren't very efficient in converting those too points and led 27-10 at the half."

Otsego nearly matched that point total in the third quarter, outscoring Harper Creek 24-10 to push its lead to 51-20.

"After a discussion at halftime concerning our offense, we came out in the third quarter and put the game away," Koshar said.

Smalldon had 23 and Fitzpatrick scored 12 to go with a team-best seven rebounds.

"Along with our normal scorers, we had three girls score their first varsity points in Madeline Goodwin, Emma Engbers and Hallie Prough, so that was a highlight," Koshar said.

Emma Engbers and Prough each scored four points, while Goodwin scored two.

FENNVILLE—After opening the season with a 48-32 home win against Comstock on Tuesday, Dec. 9, the Fennville girls basketball team hoped up improve to 2-0 when it hosted Bridgman on Friday, Dec. 12.

Unfortunately, the Bees had different ideas.

Bridgman used an 17-12 edge in the fourth quarter to snap what had been a 31-31 deadlock at the end of three quarters and secure the 48-43 win at the Blackhawks' expense.

The game was tied at 7-7 after one quarter and Fennville trailed 19-18 at halftime before pulling even heading to the final stanza.

Fennville's Amiyah Johnson led all scorers with 22 points, including four 3-pointers. Ceeley Howard had 11 points—six of those on two triples—while Veda Steward added six points and seven rebounds.

Adriana Hicks led Fennville with nine rebounds.

In the win over Comstock, Howard and Johnson combined for 31 points.

Howard led the charge with 17 points to go with five assists. Johnson had 14 points.

Fennville raced out to a 13-7 lead at the end of the first stanza and pushed that advantage to 27-10 at the intermission.

Faces in the Crowd

By G C Stoppel

The tradition of sending Christmas cards began in the 1840s when the British Post Office invented the postage stamp. Suddenly they needed a reason for people to use them to stay in business. The answer was the Christmas greeting card. Although we send fewer than in the past, the tradition continues.

This week's question: What are your best or worst Christmas card memories?

-Woman at a gas station on M-89: "That's a really weird question. I don't know. I get them; I send them; they're a nuisance. And expensive!"

-Man at the next pump: "She's right. They're an expensive nuisance. Me and my wife used to send out a hundred or so. Now, we're down to half that number and it's still an expensive nuisance."

-Woman near the Mexican restaurant in Fennville: "I remember the first year I got a card. I was five, and I felt so grown up. I made Mama save it for me, but I guess it's gone by now. It was from Aunt Leona."

-Man near the Fennville hardware store; Doubled-up laughing, he said, "I was junior high and I wanted to make some big money. BIG money. Well, I figured out since people collected stamps I'd get everyone to give me their envelopes and stamps. Back then, people sent cards by the hundred, so I got plenty - family, friends, even the bank. I was going to be rich. It didn't work out because there wasn't a market for used three cent stamps. I looked on-line the other day, and they're still not worth much."

-Middle aged couple; man, same location: "The first time my girlfriend sent me a card. We still give each other a card, only now she's, my wife." Woman: "After Christmas I put them in a special shoebox and save them. They're special to me." Man: "And me."

-Woman near the Fennville grocery store: "I don't know. They're just another thing to get done in December. And I don't get help from my family, either."

-Man near the Allegan Post Office: "See these? More Christmas cards. Between the cost of the card and the stamp, they set me back nearly a buck a piece. It's crazy. But we wouldn't have it any other way. Gotta stay in touch with people or you get forgotten."

-Woman near Sassy Olive: Big smile: "My favorites are the long letters with medical news. Some people give way too much information they ought to keep to themselves. They're hoot. But I sort of enjoy it unless it is too gross."

-Older woman near the florist shop in Allegan: "I guess they're pretty old fashioned, but I do it because I stay in touch with people. It's a tradition."

-Woman with her. "Well, I love getting cards. It lets me know I'm not forgotten or people think I'm dead or something like that. What I really like is that our church makes sure everyone in a couple of nursing homes gets at least one card."

Peek at the Past

From the pages of The Allegan News and The Allegan County News and Gazette:

Dec. 18, 1950

Otsego tops Allegan for first time in eight years: For the first time in eight years, an Otsego basketball squad defeated an Allegan team.

The Bulldogs were red hot in their 55-48 victory on their home floor Tuesday night.

It was Allegan's second straight loss after a brilliant start to this season.

Otsego was on fire from the first and they kept it up for one dazzling quarter. Big 6-foot, 4-inch Jack Weber, Otsego's center, ran up 14 points in that frame. Midway through the first period, Otsego had Allegan down 15-1. At the end of the frame, the Bulldogs were leading 24-7.

Allegan partially regained its poise in the second stanza. The Tigers outscored Otsego in this period—in fact in the rest of the game—but that first quarter lead was too much.

Dec. 18, 1975

Christmas brightens for 525 families: From the looks of things in the county services center near Dumond Lake, Santa Claus has opened a southern workshop.

Presents, canned goods, toys, clothes and stuffed animals by the score line the walls and cover the floor of the social services spare room, a room designated the North Pole by Volunteer Services workers who are collecting the donated items to give to families this Christmas who might not otherwise have a bountiful holiday.

Coordinators Linda Wilson and Nancy Johnson said they are "absolutely amazed" at the response county residents have made to the program, a program which last year provided similar material for more than 1,600 residents of Allegan County.

Volunteer Services is acting as a clearinghouse for families who, according to Mrs. Wilson, "would have a bleak Christmas without the help of others."

Dec. 21, 2000

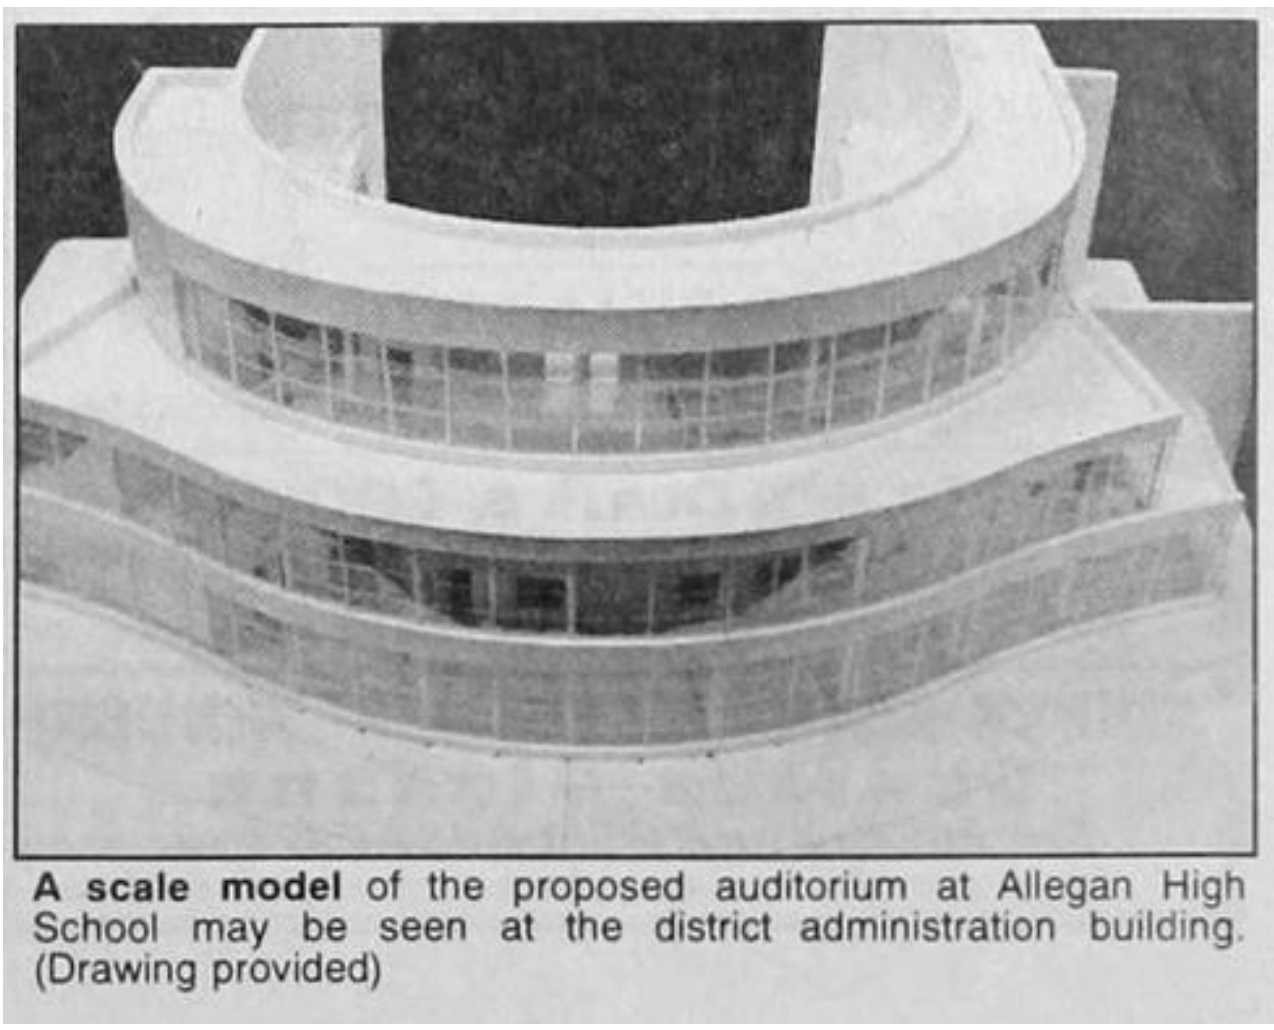
School reviews final plan for pool and auditorium: Bad weather foiled a plan of Allegan Public Schools to adopt final architectural drawings for an auditorium and pool addition to the high school Monday, Dec. 11. School administrators called TMP Architecture in Detroit that morning, telling architects not to brave a blizzard to bring drawings to a regular school board meeting scheduled for that evening.

The architects braved less-foul weather to appear at a make-up board meeting two days later. They returned to Detroit with instructions to make some minor, technical changes in the plans.

New drawings will likely come before the board in January for adoption.

Assistant superintendent Kevin Harness said the drawings are now essentially complete.

Voters approved a $17.9 million bond issue in June 2000 for the pool and auditorium addition. With interest, the project will have an $18.9 million budget. The addition will be built at the back (west) end of the high school. The district spent more than $500,000 to buy land from the Harlans and the Hiscocks along 115th Avenue. Those properties will be turned into a new entry drive to the back parking lot.



A scale model of the proposed auditorium at Allegan High School may be seen at the district administration building. (Drawing provided)

Zak, Alivia TerMeer earn All-American honors in soccer: What could possibly be better than having an All-American in the family?

Having two All-Americans in the family, of course.

Such was the case for the TerMeer clan in Plainwell.

Siblings and Plainwell High School graduates Zak and Alivia TerMeer both recently received word that they had garnered All-American honors from the National Christian College Athletic Association for their performance on the soccer field at Grace Christian University.

Grace competes at the NCCAA Division II level.

Zak was named First Team All-American for his redshirt sophomore season, while Alivia was named Second Team All-American for her freshman campaign.

Parents Tom and Erin TerMeer were understandably proud of their children's accomplishments.

"When we found out that both of them made All-American, it was somewhat of a surprise, especially since we didn't think either of them would be playing this fall (due to COVID)," Tom TerMeer said. "But what makes us most proud is that both of them never lost focus even with the constant schedule changes and uncertainty if they could finish their season.

"We cannot thank the NCCAA and the Grace Christian athletic department enough for having the season for all of the athletes."

Zak admitted that the uncertainty surrounding COVID resulted in some unique challenges.

"The hardest part this year with COVID-19 was the fact that we might not have a season at all and having to put in the work all summer long to prepare for the season that might not happen," he said. "The uncertainty of the season being stopped was on everyone's mind and we had to play every game like it would have been our last and the team stepped up to do that."

Zak definitely made the most out of his opportunity to play this season, scoring six goals in 12 games.

—Compiled by Jason Wesseldyk

Department of Social Services volunteer services workers, from left, Nancy Johnson, Dealie Williams, and Linda Wilson work to organize what may be only the beginning of an avalanche of donations from generous county residents. The items will be used by volunteer services to brighten the Christmasses of more than 500 county families who otherwise might have a bleak holiday.

RELIGION SECTION

By G C Stoppel

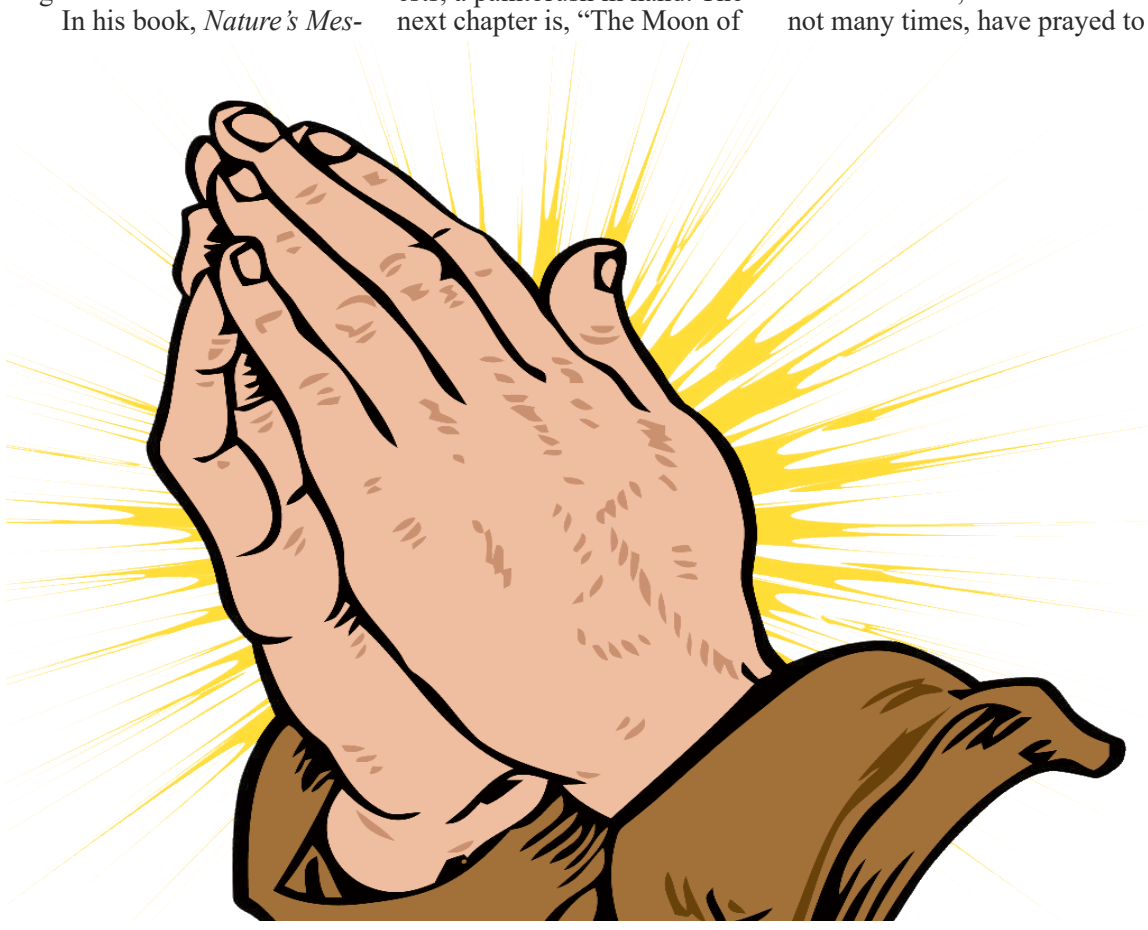
Very early the other morning I received a Face Book message. It was an autumn picture of Green Gables Farm on Prince Edward Island, the setting for Lucy Maud Montgomery's novels Anne of Green Gables. Superimposed over the picture are words from her book where Anne says, "I am so glad I live in a world where there are Octobers."

I really had not thought of our tenth month that way before, but I understood the message the other day when I went out to clear the driveway just after dawn. We had a heavy snowfall that night. Anne was right on the money with her affirmation, "I am so glad I live in a world where there are Octobers." Right now, I miss autumn.

Of course, now we are in December. What brings life to her statement is when we let our imagination run a little wild and we gratefully begin seeing the beauty of every month. It is allowed for us to fuss about cold, snow-filled driveways, and slippery roads. And yes, we miss warmer weather, the sound of birds, and the colors of leaves and flowers. It is cold comfort to remind ourselves about life here. We endlessly repeat, "no hurricanes, no alligators, no earthquakes," hoping to convince ourselves that we have it so good.

In his book, Nature's Messages, the late Sam Campbell wrote a short chapter entitled 'When the Red Imps' play. He let his imagination run wild and told of Jack Frost running wild through the northern forests, a paintbrush in hand. The next chapter is, "The Moon of the Barren Boughs." The third is called, "Winter just came." The juxtaposition of these three stories has the power to touch our heart and lift our spirits.

Most of us, at least once if not many times, have prayed to God to show himself. I believe that when we experience and take delight in December, that really is a very real example of God's presence. It is easy when there is a riot of color in October. It is almost as easy to feel God's presence on a quiet night when snow flutters down. In a blizzard, God is there, too, in the wind and pelting snow.



Years ago a young reporter was sent to interview a man who just turned one hundred years. He asked the fellow about his secret to a long life. He smiled and said, "Every morning I get up and go to my window. Regardless of what is outside, I always tell God that the weather is perfect for this day. I think God lets me stick around so I can say thanks for what he has given us. I'm not certain enough people are grateful if the weather isn't to their liking."

What a wonderful attitude. St. Paul reminds us that in all things, we are able to give thanks to God. And so we should.
